PARTY

The Stars Come Out in Toronto

When the lights go out the film is about to start. But when the sun goes down it's time to party at the Toronto Film Festival.

Naomi Watts, Maria Bello and Viggo Mortensen

Naomi Watts revealed that her life imitated her art during the filming of Eastern Promises, which premiered at the festival on Saturday night. "I started shooting just before I found out I was pregnant," Watts, who plays a mid-wife in the film, told reporters. While the new mom left tot Alexander at home to join Viggo Mortensen and Maria Bello at the after-party—held at hot spot Cheval—her latest real-life role has made her more of a homebody. "Life has changed dramatically, now it's all about the baby," she said. "You can't be as spontaneous."

Next: Ben Affleck
